

Sharing My Life as a PostDoc: Work, Family and Future Plan

Li Huang, PhD

School of Biomedical Engineering and Imaging Sciences, Faculty of Life Sciences and Medicine, King's College London, United Kingdom

Abstract

PostDoc serves as quite a different career stage other than PhD. In this talk, I would like to share with the MIMENIMA audiences my life as a PostDoc in King's College London (UK) after leaving MIMENIMA including:

- Research in the field of diagnostic and interventional Cardiac Magnetic Resonance Imaging
- Collaboration with clinical fellows and industrial partners
- Funding applications for grants and fellowships towards Wellcome, EPSRC, BHF, etc
- Teaching
- Campus events such as trainings, public engagements, services for school and university
- Family life, health and well-being, children
- Job hunting towards academic, industrial and others

A funny video about PostDoc life in King's College London can be found here:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Q1YIYx8VBkl>